NCLEX® FAQs

How are the results processed?

As part of the quality control process, every NCLEX® is scored twice: once by the computer at the test center and again after the examination record has been transmitted to Pearson VUE.

Candidate results are transmitted electronically to the nursing regulatory body (NRB) in the jurisdiction where the candidate has applied for licensure/registration. Each NRB has developed its own procedure for distributing results to candidates. It can take up to six weeks to receive your official results. Do not call Pearson VUE, the National Council of State Boards of Nursing (NCSBN®) or your NRB for the results as they will not be released over the telephone.

What does the number of items I answered tell me about my results?

It is important to understand that the length of your NCLEX or the number of items answered is not an indication of a specific pass or fail result. A candidate with a relatively short examination may pass or fail just as a candidate with a long examination may pass or fail.

Each candidate, regardless of the length of their examination, has ample opportunity to demonstrate their true ability and is given an examination that conforms to the NCLEX Test Plans. Many candidates' examinations will end before the maximum number of items has been administered.

Please do not be concerned if your examination finishes earlier or lasts longer than other candidates. The length of your examination is determined solely by your performance on the examination. The differing lengths of each candidate's examination are an illustration of computerized adaptive testing (CAT) at work.

What if I ran out of time?

If the candidate runs out of time before reaching the maximum number of items, the computer has not been able to decide whether the candidate passed or failed with 95% certainty. Alternate criteria are used:

- If the candidate has not answered the minimum number of items, the result will be a failing exam.
- If at least the minimum number of required items were answered, then the final ability estimate will be based on all responses given before the exam time expired. If the score is at or above the passing standard, the candidate will pass; otherwise, the candidate will fail.

What if I did not pass?

Candidates who do not pass the NCLEX will receive a Candidate Performance Report (CPR), which shows their areas of relative strength and weakness in the content areas of the NCLEX Test Plans. This report is provided to help candidates prepare for their next examination.

There must be at least 45 test free days between each examination. This period of time is determined by each individual NRB and NCSBN.

Contact your NRB to obtain the necessary forms and information to reregister at any time. However, once declared eligible by your NRB, your new Authorization to Test (ATT) will not be valid until the required number of days between examinations elapses.
